GENERAL NEWS.

Bearing the Stock Market.

NEW YORK, March 15.—The Commercial Bulletin says the bear party, which has had until lately complete control of the market, finding there were good buyers for all Vanderbilt and Gould stocks they wanted to sell at advancing prices, turned their attention to stocks which have no friends, like D. and R. G., and N. J. Central, and in less degree, the Louisville and Nashville. These stocks they raided from time to time, but with indifferent success so far as creating general demoralization is concerned. These stocks closed lower than yesterday, but other stocks were all higher. There was an absence, says the Mail and Express, of that uneasiness which has characterized the market for some time past. The showing made by Gould yesterday and the efforts now being made to punish those engaged in circulating false reports for the purpose of damaging private and corporate credit had a very good effect and tended to restore confidence. The governing committee of the stock exchange, in addition to whatever legal measures that may be taken by individuals, should act promptly in the premises and administer in their own body whatever punishment they can to any members of the exchange who send afloat unfounded reports or rumors calculated to impair the credit of individuals or firms. It is a notorious fact of late that this rumor business has been carried to extremes and great depression engineered thereon in securities at intervals, whereas all surroundings of the general situation warranted and called for improvement. There is no time like the present to point out the pernicious operation of rumor mongers and we trust the governing committee will give this matter their attention.

The Omaha Inquest.

OMAHA, Neb., March 12.—The coroner's inquest over the remains of George P. Armstrong, who was bayoneted to death Sunday evening, by militiamen, was concluded last evening by the jury returning a verdict that the deceased came to his death by a bayonet wound at the hands of a militiaman while in the discharge of his duty, and who is unknown to the jury. Armstrong's death caused great indignation among labor union men, who will attend the funeral en masse to-day. No one outside of militiamen know exactly who the militiaman was. Walsh, president of the labor union, threatened in a speech that if necessary he would head a body of men and march to the militia camp, demand surrender of the man, and if need be proceed to extremities to arrest him. It is suspected that the militiaman has left town. A special grand jury are now engaged in inquiring into the cases of certain rioters and ringleaders.

An Interesting Time.

CHICAGO, March 15.—The meeting of Iroquois club to-morrow evening will be rendered an interesting event in local democratic politics by the presence of Senator Lamar, ex-Gov. Hendricks, Congressmen and ex-Congressmen Hurd, Watterson, Harrison, Trumbull, Breckenridge, and Dan Little and R. P. Merritt, of Washington, J. S. Black and Vilas, of Wisconsin, all of whom will deliver addresses. Letters will be read from Senator Bayard and Govs. Palmer and Tilden.

A Railroad Pool.

From indisputable sources it is learned that although the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad has completed its Denver extension, except about 85 miles, there is between that road and the Union Pacific a mutual desire for peace, and a conference was held here yesterday between officials of the two corporations, and although no formal agreement was made, there was practically an understanding reached, and a basis was laid for a pooling compact on trans-Missouri traffic. It includes joint depot grounds at Denver, completion of the Missouri Pacific to a junction with the Union Pacific, and terminal relations at Omaha.

The Rivers Falling.

MEMPHIS, March 15.—River continues falling and now marks 33 feet 6 inches on the gauge and is falling at all points down the river.

HELENA, Ark., March 15.—The river continues falling at the rate of 2¼ inches in 24 hours, and the overflow in the city is passing off in like ratio. The worst is over, although there is little or no diminution in the suffering, except where aid is furnished by the government, which is nothing compared to what the country requires to save its starving people.

The Ex-Mayor of Dallas Killed.

DALLAS, Tex., March 15.—This city was thrown into great excitement this afternoon by the announcement that ex-Mayor G. M. Thurmond had been shot and killed in the county court room by Robert E. Cowrant, a prominent lawyer. Thurmond was also a member of the legal profession, and about the most notorious character as a lawyer and local politician in the entire state. A political quarrel was at the bottom of the affair, but personal feeling caused the assault.

A Desperate Character.

A special says that the ex-mayor of Dallas, Texas, who was killed by a man named Cowalt, yesterday, was known throughout Colorado, California, Montana and Texas. He was driven from Montana years ago by the vigilantes because he was a legal defender of road agents. He was a native of Kentucky, and about 45.

A Heavy Editorial.

NEW YORK, March 15.—Tribune's editorial: Congress may make laws not to let any more Chinamen come to this country, but everybody needs to understand plainly that those who are here must be well treated. One person who probably realized this notion is patrolman John Brady, who was dismissed from the police force yesterday for having beaten a Chinaman recently and held him while two young ruffians cut off the inoffensive foreigner's queue.

Massachusetts Legislative Proceedings.

BOSTON, March 15.—The prohibitory liquor bill passed to third reading in the house by 15 to 8. The senate passed a resolution in favor of biennial state elections by 26 to 1.

WASHINGTON CITY.

The Destitute Southerners.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—The secretary of war telegraphed Gen. Beckwith at St. Louis, about sending army officers to various points in Louisiana to make detailed reports of destitution. He has also instructed the commissary general to have rations forwarded to the commissioner for Illinois, for the relief of Shawneetown.

Much Ado Over a Small Matter.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—Investigation of the affairs of the soldier's home by a sub-committee of the senate military committee, has excited much interest in the army. Gen. Sturgis, governor, has written a letter to the committee complaining of the fact that his office is more ornamental than useful, the three commissioners, Adjutant General Drum, Commissary General MacFeeley and Surgeon General Barnes, monopolizing all the powers, and opening and shutting the gates leading to the city. Gen. Sturgis succeeded Gen. Potter as governor, a retired officer, who is said to have yielded entirely to the authority of the commissioners. Various abuses are charged upon the latter, such as accepting flowers, fruits and vegetables raised upon the grounds of the home. Gen. Drum indignantly denies all reception of such things, and the other two officers, it is said, will demand a court of inquiry.

PACIFIC COAST NEWS.

CALIFORNIA.

Will Contest the Law.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 15.—At a meeting held last evening by the League of Freedom, an organization composed of all classes of persons who are in the habit of keeping open places of business on Sunday, the league resolved to contest the Sunday law, which has by a recent decision of the supreme court been declared constitutional, and to keep open their places of business as heretofore.

Sympathy for the Strikers.

A large meeting was held this evening by the trades assembly of this city, at which were unanimously adopted resolutions sympathizing with the strikers at Omaha and condemning in strong terms the action of the civil authorities in invoking military aid, also extending hearty sympathy with the leaders of the strike who were arrested.

Suicide.

TELEGRAPHIC SPARKS.

The British steamer Anjier Herd arrived in San Francisco Tuesday with 868 Chinamen from Hongkong.

The number of immigrants arriving in the United States during the eight months ending February 28, were 375,201.

Judge H. W. Wolworth, counsel for defense in star route cases, recently tried at Lincoln, Neb., arrived to-night to secure if possible abandonment of further prosecution. Those acquitted at Lincoln were under six indictments.

SUPREME COURT.

SALEM, March 15, 1882.

Supreme court met at 10:30 o'clock A. M., full bench being present.

T. M. Read, app., vs. Benton county, resp.; cause argued and submitted.

Ordered that the court stand adjourned until 10:30 o'clock to-morrow.

Cardinal Manning, in a recent speech at Birmingham, declared that the "usurpation of Rome" had brought trouble to all the European nations. "As for Germany," said he, "no sooner had Rome been usurped than there took place that terrible conflict between France and Germany which was nothing more than the last shots of the great duel of the Thirty Years' War between North and South Germany 200 years ago, when the supremacy which was held by Southern Germany passed to the North." Unfortunately for the cardinal, facts make sad work with the logic of this burning sentence. Rome, he is told, was occupied on September 20, 1870, some ten months later than the declaration of war between France and Germany.

Nathan Eaton, a United States prisoner, was discharged from the penitentiary yesterday.

AN OPEN LETTER.

CAPTAIN M. C. WILKINSON TO PAUL SCHULZE, ESQ.

In Relation to the Alaska Children in the Indian Training School at Forest Grove.

FOREST GROVE, Or., March 14.

To Mr. Paul Schulze, Portland, Or.: To-day's mail puts before me a reported interview with you by a member of the National Republican, Washington, D. C., as published in that paper January 24, 1882. This reported interview fills nearly one column of closely printed matter, and must have had some foundation in fact. It is headed, in part:

In reply to the question, "Have you any churches or schools?" you are made to say

* * * * *

"I think the right thing to do would be to establish at Sitka or some point in southeastern Alaska, an Indian training and industrial school similar to the one at Hampton. The young Indians should be taught the useful arts and such industries suitable to the wants of the country, such as boat-building, net-making, the manufacture of fishing utensils, carpentering and blacksmithing. There are now a number of Alaskan boys in the training school at Forest Grove, Oregon, but the instruction they receive there unfits them for Alaska, and does them more harm than good. I hope a clause for such a training school will be added to the bill I have already mentioned."

To rush into print is not wise, and the readers of THE OREGONIAN will bear witness that I have not shown a desire to do so, and respecting the success of this school have chosen first, last and all the time to let it speak for itself; and now if you had been interviewed anywhere else, and had made just the statement you did with reference to the work here, I should not have given the matter the slightest attention. It is evident that your trip to Washington was in the interest of legislation favorable to the development of Alaska. Of course you are deeply impressed with the fact that the company you serve will be a means to that end, and the good dinner you gave to our substantial friends at Wormley's no doubt helped to impress facts, as you understand them; but certainly you don't seem to go about your business affairs, and your "working-up" Alaska matters, with the looseness you most certainly have displayed (as reported) in your reference to this school.

You permitted the reporter of the National Republican to ask you some "convenient" questions, may I ask you two? First—Did you ever visit Hampton? Second—Did you ever visit the Forest Grove training school? Let me guess a reply to the first and I shall count my guess the true reply and take the chances—no—and although many of your good friends including the honorable secretary of state at Berlin, Hertzog, have visited the school at Forest Grove, you have not. So frankly, Mr. Schulze, haven't you been a little hasty, to say the least, in speaking so emphatically as you do when you say that "this school is doing the Alaska boys more harm than good?" I take it you are an honest man and if you gave this for publication in Washington did you do an honest man's duty while there and report it to the secretary of the interior? If you did visit Hampton you found that that school was one for the colored youth, and not until recently have Indians been taken. It is specially an agricultural school. How about agriculture in Alaska? Its legal title is "Hampton Normal and Agricultural Institute." This school and Hampton in some of its methods are alike. In my judgment, however, in the future, this one can do better work for the Indian for the reason that the same discipline for the Indian is not that desirable for the negro, but this has nothing to do with the subject matter of this letter. Let us see by the following statement of facts whether the Alaska boys have received more harm than good during the less than one year they have been in this school. Originally there were ten Alaska youths sent to this school—one girl and nine boys. The girl is the daughter of the Indian missionary woman now in the service of the Presbyterian church at Chilcat. Those who saw her on her arrival and know her now, will testify to a great change. And now of the boys. Two only could speak fair English, just fair, seven could not. During this time the seven have learned to speak English well. They read and write it also, beside having made good progress in the common English branches. Young Kadashan, however, being somewhat deaf, does not speak as well as the others, but in his books has done better than some of the rest. Two can do general blacksmithing. One is a good shoemaker and helped largely to earn $14 for the shoemaker's shop last week in our repair shop, located in this town. Two are learning to be bakers, turning out, on the average, 125 loaves of bread, good bread, daily, and one is learning the carpenter's trade. The others are too young to put at trades. Now, very soberly, Mr. Schulze, don't you think it's about time I broke silence?

Since writing the foregoing, which was done yesterday, to-day's OREGONIAN reproduces all but the headlines of this same interview. As published it will of course go to Alaska. Do you think in view of the fact that you have never personally inspected the work here and really know nothing about what you speak so decidedly, you have not done the Indians in Alaska, for whom you no doubt feel a deep interest, harm? You know how much these people think of their children, and you tell them their children are getting more harm than good here. Well, then be consistent, and help me get them back to Alaska; for, please believe me, my sober judgment is that the tribes nearer by, the tribes in this state and Washington territory, need the advantages of this school more than do the Alaska Indians—notably the Umatillas—who are the least calculated to meet the new condition of things coming to them, than any tribe I know anything of. I am glad for the change coming—land in severalty, and as soon as it can be safely done, breaking up of the reservation system, and in every council with the Indians have said that the change must come and that they must prepare for it, and that man (or men) who tell them otherwise, although he may think himself their friend, is not. But your "net making," and your "boats," and your "fishing tackle,"—well!—it won't hurt the future boat maker to be a carpenter, or a blacksmith, and shoemaking won't unfit the boys' hand for making fishing utensils, and bakers are useful. You see, in your zeal to promote the welfare of Alaska and no doubt a reasonable ambition to further the interests of your good company, you just didn't say what I think you would had you taken a little run out here before you went to Washington. Besides, as a "resident" of Alaska may I not appeal to you with regard to the desirability of separating the children from the degrading influences of their people during the years of their school life? You don't pretend to say that these boys could have learned English in Alaska in the time they have learned it here, without which they cannot learn trades to any advantage; learned their lessons of promptness and neatness and all that? Certainly Hampton prospers, as does the school at Carlisle, Pa., and this one because of this very separation this training implies. Let me give you the testimony of the instructor of these Alaskan children, which is that they show singular brightness and proficiency both in their books and at their trades. They work faithfully and with but two slight exceptions, have never given me the slightest trouble.

Your statement with regard to their being harmed here gives them great uneasiness as they see its possible consequences in making their friends unhappy in Alaska. Certainly you understand how easy it is even to make the Indians think their children are suffering in the white man's hand. I only wish you had the work of answering the letters from among all the Indians that your very unjust, (to characterize it in no other way) statement will make necessary. I am, sir, with respect, your obedient servant.

M. C. WILKINSON, U. S. A.

Woman Slavery.

From Prof. Adler's Lecture in New York.

Eighty-five per cent of those who die from mercurial poisoning contracted in the looking-glass factories of Germany are women. In England, where factory legislation had accomplished so much in the last forty years, an appalling state of things existed. In the "Black Country"—the chain and nail making parts of England—the reports of the government inspectors told a terrible tale. In a row of chain shops women alone might be found at work, and their husbands might be seen lolling against the walls. It was a fact that men married "nailers" as they were called, to live on their toil and drink up their earnings. The delicate girl of 21 wielded the heavy "oliver." The reason women were employed was because more work could be wrung out of them than out of men. They were docile and submissive. They would obtain 8s for a week's work, and after paying the baby-tenders, the "firers" at the forge, and other expenses, would have 3s 6d left. In the agricultural district women and children were worked in gangs. The gang-masters drove them from field to field, and far away from home, in boots and semi-male attire. This, however, did not compare with the sights in the collieries, and far surpassing imagination were the spectacles in the collieries of Scotland. Women were compelled to work in mines filled with gas and flooded with water. The bible said the life of man was threescore years and ten, but women working in the collieries seldom lived to be over 30 or 40. Little girls of 4 were taken into the collieries and at 6 carried loads of 100 and 150 pounds on their backs. The black spectre carries the toilers off with terrible certainty. Poor Annie Hamilton worked unceasingly for 24 hours. Then she was given two hours to partake of her pea-soup and secure rest, after which she worked 12 hours more. The women were nude to the waist, and wore a pair of loose trousers. About the waist was a belt to which a heavy chain was attached and dragged between their knees. They pulled with this chain loads of coal through long, low, damp passages, and were compelled to go on all fours like brutes. In this way they hauled loads 16,000 yards a day.

WORKINGMEN.

Before you begin your heavy spring work after a winter of relaxation, your system needs cleansing and strengthening to prevent an attack of ague, bilious or spring fever, or some other spring sickness that will unfit you for a season's work. You will save time, much sickness and great expense if you will use one bottle of Hop Bitters in your family this month. Don't wait.—Burlington Hawkeye.

CONGRESSIONAL PROCEEDINGS.

House.

WASHINGTON, March 15.

The house in committee of the whole yesterday again took up the anti-polygamy bill, the pending question being on [illegible] demand for previous question on third reading.

Burrows was in favor of the bill just as it was, though it might not be perfect. He would vote against every amendment, but the majority had the right to say the minority should not offer amendments.

After some further noisy discussion Haskell offered the following, and it was agreed to by unanimous consent:

Ordered that the present legislative day continue until the pending bill is disposed of,—bill to be open to amendment and debate be carried on under the five minute rule for one hour; that at the end of that hour the previous question shall be considered as ordered on the bill and amendments then pending; that one hour be allowed after previous question is ordered, which hour shall be equally divided between friends and opponents of the bill, at the end of which hour the question shall be taken on the pending amendments and passage of the bill.

The first amendment offered was by Reagan, of Texas, to amend the section providing that "no polygamist or bigamist shall vote at any election in Utah territory," by insertion of the words "any person duly convicted of being a polygamist," etc.; rejected.

Mills, of Texas, moved to strike out sections 8 and 9, which prohibit any polygamist or bigamist from voting at elections, and provide for appointment of territorial officers by the president.

Cassidy of Nevada held that if these two sections were stricken out, the bill would be worthless. The youth of the territory must be taught to obey the law of the land as well as other people. Polygamy must be made disreputable among the people of Utah, and this could not be done as long as polygamists occupied the elective offices in the territory. He denounced the Mormon religion as promulgated by the lecherous element in Utah as lust and prostitution carried on and promulgated by teachers, apostles and chief scribes of the Mormon church in Utah.

The last part of Mills' amendment, striking out section 8, was rejected without division, and the latter portion striking out section 9, by a vote of yeas 89, nays 139.

The vote by which the house refused to strike out section 8 was reconsidered, and roll call consumed the remainder of the hour, and when Hammond of Georgia desired to offer an amendment the speaker ruled it was out of order.

Singleton of Illinois thereupon suggested that Haskell had been very successful (probably on account of experience in trapping wild animals) in trapping the democracy.

Buckner of Missouri said as great a wrong as polygamy was, this bill was a greater wrong on the constitution and rights of the people. He believed, and he was sorry to believe it, that this measure was pushed through for the purpose of affecting the contested election case of Campbell vs. Cannon.

Springer of Illinois, Kenna of West Virginia and Herbert of Alabama, while stating that they were in favor of the purposes of the bill, declared their belief that as it stood it was unconstitutional, and they would therefore vote against it.

Townshend of Illinois argued that the bill was constitutional and was no infringement on the religious belief of any people.

McCold of Iowa justified the course of the republicans in asking the passage of the bill as soon as it was reached upon the speaker's desk, and predicted that the gentlemen on the other side who filibustered against the measure to suppress polygamy would learn to regret it, as well as the fact that they had voted almost solidly against the 8th and 9th sections, which contained the very strength of the measure.

Singleton of Illinois said that being denied an opportunity of offering an amendment to perfect the bill, he would be compelled to vote against it. In the first place the bill did not go far enough in the direction of suppressing polygamy and its kindred crimes against society and good morals. Here was the District of Columbia exclusively within the control of congress with no law providing for the punishment of adultery, and yet the house was unwilling to listen to the proposition which would cure this crying evil against society, religion and good morals. He was opposed to the bill because it authorized the president to dicker with Mormons and grant them amnesty under certain conditions. The president might want to contract for half a dozen wives himself. Was it not indelicate to confer such power on the president as that he should impose conditions on those to whom he extended amnesty.

Converse of Ohio opposed the bill, which, he asserted, would legislate out of office all minor officers of the territory and organize anarchy instead of law.

Carlisle inquired whether when offices were vacant there was any means provided for filling vacancies. The legislature could not assemble for two years, and during all that time offices would be vacant.

Haskell—The governor can fill the offices.

Carlisle contended that governor could not, and quoted from the statutes of Utah to show that the power rested with the legislature and county courts. Was there any law of congress, he inquired, repealing these statutes. By this bill county judges, by whom vacancies are to be filled, were themselves legislated out of office, and there would be not a man left to probate wills, settle estates, keep records or execute processes. Does the gentleman (Haskell) say this bill is prospective merely in its operation?

Haskell—There is power in the governor under the organic act that cannot be repealed by legislative enactment to appoint every one of them. Moreover I say it is the intention of this bill, and friends of this bill, to legislate out of office every one of this infamous Mormon priesthood and give an opportunity to put in honest men. [Applause.]

Robeson said the bill was progressive in its provisions, holding it to be a maxim of law that it was not retroactive, unless so expressed directly.

Carlisle agreed that it was the correct construction of the law, but asserted that Haskell had just announced that the purpose of the bill was to legislate out of office immediately every man who was amenable to its provisions.

Haskell—I did not say "immediately." I mean by process of law.

Carlisle—The bill provides no process of law for the purpose of ascertaining whether people are guilty of an offense. It simply says they shall not be competent to hold office.

Converse, of Ohio, indorsed all that was said by Carlisle on the bill.

Carlisle—That is what I understood, and I am not objecting to a provision that legislates them out of office, but I am objecting to the crude and imperfect section which legislates out of office and puts no one else in, and leaves the territory in a state of utmost confusion.

Haskell—Do you hold the territorial legislature can repeal the organic act?

Carlisle—The territorial legislature has not attempted to repeal the act, but it has legislated on this subject and its law is the only one now in force, to continue to act two years in Utah, there could be no doubt about it.

Williams, of Wisconsin, said: Secret vice, however prevalent and deplorable, could never be a justification for flagrant and open violation of public morals and public law. Mormonism, with its adjunct polygamy, robbed vice of its hideousness and demanded it should not only be sanctioned by public law, but defied by the divine approval of God, and thus entrenched, it challenged criticism and defied attack. It disrupted and destroyed the family, it loosened the foundation of civil government, removed the very corner stone of republican institutions, and in turn, it controlled the ballot-box, commanded courts, and if entitled to its demands, it might command the nation, man ships, march armies and exercise all powers in its defense. While he would persecute no man; while he would give the widest liberty to conscience and religion, he would say to Oriental paganism with its customs and demands, "Thus far and no farther. Where the clear waters of the Pacific kiss the pure sands of our western shore, there you shall pause in presence of the majestic power of the civilization of the noonday of the world. [Applause.]

Robeson replied to the argument that this bill was a blow against free government.

Burrows stated he would vote for the bill, though he believed it would disappoint the expectations of its friends, yet was worth trying, and he trusted congress would rise to the high position demanded by the American people, and pass some efficient measure that would eradicate this evil of polygamy.

Haskell characterized the Mormon church as infamous in its object, in its purpose and in its past accomplishments; but magnified in power by a priestly organization, as unrivaled by any organization in the world. He wished he could picture to the house this Mormon heirarchy of Utah, which was struck at by the bill. He would like to show democrats who were voting to maintain an infamous institution how Mormons had slipped out of control of the general government over four hundred thousand acres of the public lands and prostituted them to an iron-clad church ecclesiasticism. He would like to tell how they had passed the greater part of their territory out of federal courts and put it into the hands of municipal organizations. He would like to call attention of the democratic party to the fact that the people of the United States would not hold it guiltless for the declaration on this floor that it abhorred polygamy, if when it were called it should vote against the most righteous bill that ever came before congress. Every bill, he said in conclusion, that ever came before congress in 15 years, was killed by the same process you tried to enact in this bill, loaded down with amendments and left to die in the conference committee where the Poland bill went. That is where the Frelinghuysen bill went, and that is where they have all gone, and if it were not for the republican side of this house you would have sent the Edmunds' bill to its grave. [Applause on republican side.]

House then recurred to the amendment offered by Mills of Texas, to strike out the 8th section, and it was rejected—yeas 46; nays 191. The bill then passed in exactly the shape in which it came from the senate—yeas 199; nays 42.

Following is the negative vote: Armfield, Atherton, Belmont, Blanchard, Buckner, Cabell, Caldwell, Carlisle, Chapman, Converse, Cook, Cox of North Carolina, Traver, Dibrell, Evans, Garrison, Gunter, Herbert, Herndon, Hewitt of New York, Hooker, House, Jones of Texas, Ketcham, Kn[illegible], Manning, McMillin, Mills, Morrison, Poister, Reagan, Robertson, Shackelford, Shelly, Singleton of Illinois, Thompson of Kentucky, Tillman, Tucker, Upson, Warner, Wellborn and Williams of Alabama.

Immediately upon the passage of the polygamy bill the legislative day of yesterday was closed and that of to-day opened at 12 M. with prayer by the chaplain. Resolution [illegible] postponed until to-morrow, the house went into committee [illegible]. Page of California presented [illegible] Chinese bill, substitute [illegible] to the house.

Calkins of Indiana addressed the house. He did not regard the bill as excluding Chinese [illegible] entirely from this country, but [illegible] it and [illegible] with bulwarks and batteries as to protect American citizens from the evils indicated in Senator Morton's report. The purpose of the bill being [illegible] as he understood it to be, he was in its favor. He would not be just in doing so, however, even if it should interfere seriously with the commercial relations between the United States and China, but he did not understand it would do so. Commenting on the appeals of the people of the Pacific coast for a legislative enactment to restrict immigration of Chinese, he said that a man who would not respond to these appeals was not broad enough in his views to hold a seat in the legislature of his country. If any question demanded serious consideration and legislation, no sentiment should stand in the way of doing justice to the community which appealed for action. This was not a question of sentiment, but it was an imperative duty for congress to respond to the demands and necessities of the people of the Pacific coast.

White of Kentucky inquired to what class of Chinese the gentleman understood the bill to apply?

Calkins replied that it referred to coolies.

Robinson of Massachusetts inquired what was the occasion of section 17, defining the term laborers to include both skilled and unskilled laborers?

Calkins replied that a gentleman from California, Page, would take care of that branch of the question to-morrow. Continuing his argument he concluded that the government had the right to limit immigration of Chinese, who will not and cannot assimilate with the mass of the people of this country. They came for a specific purpose and for no other. It was not for the purpose of becoming citizens, but for the purpose of amassing sufficient money to return to their own country. Calkins briefly but clearly presented many of the fundamental arguments against Chinese immigration, and read considerable testimony taken by the congressional commission. Calkins closed with an eloquent appeal for protection of American labor from the blighting effects of unrestricted Chinese immigration.

When Calkins had finished the matter went over until the next day, Page of California holding the floor.

On motion of King a resolution was adopted calling on the secretary of war for his estimate as to the number of persons made destitute by the overflow of the Mississippi river and its tributaries now receiving subsistence under his instructions and as to the time for which the necessity of giving them aid will continue. House adjourned.

A TRIBUTE TO THE LATE JOHN M. THOMPSON.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

A citizen of Oregon abroad writing to a friend speaks of the late John M. Thompson as follows: "I regret the death of Hon. J. M. Thompson, of Lane county. Although my acquaintance with him was not one of especial intimacy I feel his death as something of a personal loss. He had high elements of character and stern sentiments of honesty in private and public dealings. Taxes collected of the people he regarded as a fund more sacred than his private purse. Robbers of the public finances he contemned and hated with all the cordiality of his nature. If he could have had his way, he would have had all such gibbetted. Such a man in this age was born to public usefulness, and in his death the state of Oregon has suffered a heavy loss. The letter he wrote to his constituents when a candidate for the legislature two years since is worthy of frequent publication, and reading and adoption by all as articles of faith. If Oregon's officers in the future shall square their conduct by it, there will be no more need of investigating committees and no more exposures of moral weakness and rottenness in her official life."

THURSDAY MORNING, MARCH 16, 1882.

OUR NEIGHBOR AT THE NORTH.

On the 30th of January, Mr. George introduced in the house a bill providing a civil government for southeastern Alaska. It proposes to extend over that section, such general laws of Oregon as are applicable; and for administering them and the United States laws, provides for the appointment of a district attorney with executive powers and who shall also perform the duties of surveyor general; a United States district court with a judge and clerk, the latter to perform also the duties of land register and receiver; a recorder of deeds and three court commissioners to reside respectively at Sitka, Wrangel and Juneau City, with jurisdiction as justices of the peace, and a collector of customs at Sitka to be ex officio United States marshal. It also provides for representation of the territory by a delegate to congress and for organization of public schools and for quieting of land titles. This bill differs from the several measures heretofore proposed, in that the form of government which it provides is simple and cheap, and that it answers the demands of the people and the business interests of Alaska, and not the appeals of politicians who want to hold the offices. Until now, attempts made to secure a government have failed because they asked too much. A cumbersome and expensive plan has in every instance been suggested, and in each, the earmarks of office-seekers have been the prominent features. A complete territorial government is not wanted in Alaska and would be almost as far in advance of the requirements of the country, as the present "no law" state is behind its needs.

The bill introduced by Mr. George gives all that persons who live in Alaska, or who have interests there, deem necessary. It provides a judiciary; for land titles; for schools, and secures representation at Washington. By combining duties which in larger communities are assigned to several officers, it simplifies the government and makes it cheap. Only three new offices—district attorney, judge and clerk of court—are created by the bill, besides the commissioners and justices of the peace, and the whole cost of the proposed government, including the pay of three smaller officers, would be but $11,000 per annum. The bill was drawn up by Mr. Paul Schulze, who, as president of the Northwest Trading Company, controls the largest business interest in Alaska, and in its preparation he was aided by suggestions from Mr. Ball, formerly collector of customs at Sitka and now a resident of the territory, and by others equally interested. It is approved by capitalists of San Francisco, engaged in Alaska mining enterprises, and the California delegations in the senate and the house have been urged to support it, and will do so. Another bill introduced this session—in the house by Mr. Muldrow and in the senate by Mr. Sherman—is insufficient, providing a judiciary only with no prosecuting attorney and no security for land titles.

There can be no difference of opinion, when the facts are known, with reference to the necessity for a government in Alaska. There is now no law at all. No one can sue or be sued. The payment of debts is a personal or moral matter, as there is no means but private might to secure it. No land titles can be acquired, and of course no permanent improvements will be made until titles can be secured. The timber resources of the territory, which are very great, cannot be developed because there is no means of acquiring the lands upon which the forests grow. And even life is not secure. No crime short of actual murder comes under the jurisdiction of the United States court in this city, and lesser offences may be committed at will. Two years ago a man guilty of a hideous outrage was brought before Judge Deady, who ruled that as death did not result, his court had not authority in the case.

Portland is particularly interested in any measure which will assist development of the great region at the north. Besides a natural neighborly sympathy, there are important business connections between this city and Alaska. The Northwest Trading Company, which, more than all other enterprises combined, is developing the resources of the territory, is composed of Portland men, and its president and principal office is here. Several rich mines in Alaska are owned by Portland men, and the whole outside trade of the territory will center here. Looking at the matter selfishly, it is important that means should be adopted by which our merchants can collect debts due them in Alaska; and the board of trade, as representing mercantile interests, should officially approve Mr. George's measure. And further, the interests of Portland demand prompt mail service to Alaska, which is endangered by recent assignment of the mail contract to a boat unfit for that service. The Glad Tidings, whose owners have engaged to carry the mails, is a little craft but eighty-two feet long. It is said that she cannot perform the mail service safely; and it is certain that she is not suited to the general coast business. The postoffice department should so far as practicable assist, by the award of contracts, to provide for the business interests of isolated localities, and the Glad Tidings assignment should be abrogated in favor of a boat which will not only carry the mails but afford means of freight and passenger transportation.

EXPERT TESTIMONY.

Generals Sherman and Hancock recently appeared by invitation before the house committee on military affairs and gave their views on the question of retirements from the army. Gen. Hancock, who appeared first, expressed himself in favor of a retiring bill, but not of the kind now before the committee. He is in favor of retiring company officers at the age of 40, field officers at 55, and general officers at 65. He would promote officers to one grade higher, and then retire them when they came to be of the specific age. He did not think the compulsory-retirement bill now before the committee was the right kind of a bill. He thought the army should be young—that the country demanded it should be young—but that a bill which simply proposed to lop off a few of the older officers would not accomplish this end. A captain, in his opinion, should be under 40 years of age to perform his duties satisfactorily. He did not believe the country desired, or that it would be good policy, to retire Sherman or Sheridan, or other officers distinguished in time of war, and supply their places with less experienced men. The present law, he thought, would be sufficient to retire these officers when it was found necessary.

Gen. Sherman, following, said that he favored the retiring bill, even if it took him from the list. His personal feelings did not matter if the good of the service required it. He favored the plan of retirement adopted in England, similar to that proposed by General Hancock, and, like the latter, he thought the army should be young, and that retirements should be made at different ages for those holding different rank. The general urged the disposal of abandoned military reservations, but did not approve of the sale of any part of Fort Leavenworth. He did not favor the signal service reorganization bill or the creation of a chaplain's corps in the army.

Rhode Island is, territorially, a gainer by the last census. She has such narrow dimensions, even in the most generous estimate, that she can afford to be thankful for small favors. According to the last United States census her land surface covers 1085 square miles. This is about thirty square miles more than was given in the state census of 1875. Her domain also includes 135 square miles in Narragansett bay, twenty square miles in ponds, and ten in rivers. These are not large figures, but by way of compensation she can boast of having a denser population—viz: 276 and a fraction persons to the square mile of land—than any other state in the union. Massachusetts comes next, with 221 persons to the square mile.

The house committee on coinage will report a bill providing that the silver coin of the United States shall be a dollar, half-dollar, quarter-dollar and dime; the dollar to contain 412½ grains of standard silver, and to be the unit of value. Holders of gold or silver bullion may deposit the same at any sub-treasury, branch mint or assay office and receive the market value thereof in silver certificates of not less than $5 and of corresponding denominations with national bank notes. These shall be receivable for customs duties and internal revenue taxes, but shall not be legal tender for other obligations.

The action of the council last night with reference to the broken spring of "No. 3's" hose carriage was right. The people appreciate the efficiency of the fire department, but that efficiency does not excuse gross recklessness. A little discipline will not be amiss.

CITY.

THAT BRUTALITY CASE.—Lee Moe Sun and his wife, Soo Lin, who are now at liberty under $500 bail each, on a charge of brutally abusing their Chinese slave, were yesterday arraigned in the police court to undergo their examination. Mrs. Adam Zorn was the first witness called, who testified to living adjoining the residence of the defendants and to having seen Soo Lin run the child through the house with a stick of wood in her hand as if to strike. Adam Zorn stated that the child had once come into his house in a half frozen condition to get some water, and when there said she was sick, meaning hungry, and wanted something to eat, which he gave her. Go Sun was next called, and said he had seen the woman Soo Lin beating the child with a stick or iron rod, while the child was screaming in her pain. Dr. Watkins testified to having called at the house twice upon request of Chief of Police Lappeus, and gave a description of how the abused child looked, stating that the sores and bruises were caused by unnatural and violent means. That they might have been caused by burning. Chief of Police Lappeus told how he had found the girl when he first called and her condition at that time, also corroborated the evidence given by Dr. Watkins as to the apparent indisposition of the child. Jon Mom, a Chinese doctor, testified to having treated the child when she was first hurt, and before Dr. Dickson had been employed. He purposely got his evidence so mixed up that it amounted to absolutely nothing. Ah Jum stated that he had seen Soo Lin beat the child with a stick or iron poker. After this testimony had been given further examination was postponed until this afternoon. The injured child with both defendants were in the court room during the proceedings, the former looking much improved and in a good way to speedy recovery from her brutal treatment.

ATTEMPTED TO KILL HER HUSBAND.—About 9 o'clock last night Policeman Dobbins arrested Mrs. Prout, the divorced wife of Wm. J. Prout. She was then standing near the corner of Second and B streets, vainly trying to level a revolver at her former husband, who was holding her hands. Having been taken to the police station and searched, she was locked in a dark cell, where she was found by an OREGONIAN reporter. She was in a semi-maudlin state at the time, and told her story in an incoherent manner, which in substance is as follows: About three weeks ago Prout entered a suit against her for divorce, which was granted, and in which he was given charge of their child, a girl about six years old. She heard of the decision and hid the child for several days, but it was finally taken away from her. Since then she has tried by every means to obtain possession of the child, of which, she says, he is not the father. She implored and threatened him in vain and started from home last night with a loaded revolver, resolving that unless he returned the child she would kill him. She cocked the revolver, but he being the stronger held her hands, so that she could do nothing. She had lived with him six years, and says she was always true and faithful, until he abused her. Her will had been made to-day as she expected he would kill her if she failed to kill him. She ended by saying, "unless he gives me my child I will kill him if I hang for it." Prout has been employed at Texas ferry all the past winter, and appears to be an honest hard working man. He gave drunkenness and bad behavior as grounds for his divorce. The woman will be arraigned in the police court this afternoon.

PHOTOGRAPH MADE—ATTEMPTED SUICIDE.—Ka-ta-ta, the Alaska Indian now awaiting execution in the county jail, for the murder of two miners on Stickeen river, was yesterday taken to a photograph gallery by Sheriff Buchtel, to have his picture made. When asked whether he objected to being photographed, he replied that he did not, and seemed rather anxious that it be done. The negative of the picture was quite good and appeared to afford him great satisfaction. He is very adverse to speaking about the murder or his execution, and strongly objected to being "quizzed" about it. When asked if he believed in God, he gave his questioner to understand that he thought there was a supreme being, who would take care of him after death. He stated that he could see no means by which he could escape execution, and wanted it to take place as soon as possible. Although he appears very stolid and indifferent to his fate, he has already attempted to construct a rope by which he could hang himself in his cell. Early Monday morning Jailer McManus found him trying to plait strips of cloth which he had obtained by tearing his shirt to pieces. When detected he did not make a sign of vexation, nor would he say anything about it. Since then a special guard has been put over him, both night and day.

CHARGED WITH LARCENY.—G. L. Vanderbilt was yesterday arrested by constable Grant, charged with larceny from H. Wolf & Bro., merchants, on Front street, by whom he has been employed for some time past. He was discharged by them last Saturday for not doing his work properly. Early this week Mr. Wolf received a letter from his brother in San Francisco, telling him to dispense with Vanderbilt's services, as he was of no account whatever, and that his reputation in San Francisco was not cleanliness. This roused their suspicions, and upon going through their stock they found two suits of clothing, several dozen handkerchiefs, a valise and other small articles missing. They traced the goods to a second-hand dealer, where Vanderbilt is said to have sold them. Upon being arraigned before Justice Petrain in the evening, his bonds were fixed at $250, which, up to a late hour last night, he was unable to furnish. His examination will take place to-day.

SUNDAY SCHOOL FELLOWSHIP MEETING.—The Sunday school teachers and workers of the East Portland Congregational church have arranged to hold what may be called a teachers' institute next Saturday, the 18th inst., at their place of worship. Their co-workers in the First and Plymouth churches of this city will join them in carrying out the excellent programme which has been prepared for the occasion. A bounteous lunch will be spread by the ladies of the East Portland church at the noon and evening recesses. The day promises to be one of more than ordinary interest.

DRAMATIC ATTRACTIONS.—A dispatch from San Francisco states that Manager F. W. Stechhan will bring with him on the Columbia a small company of artists, consisting of the tragedian William E. Sheridan, the elocutionist and reader Hawley Chapman, Miss Nellie Holbrook, Miss Lou Davenport and Miss Annie Gleason, well known vocalists of that city. The purpose of the company is to give a series of parlor and drawing room entertainments, dramatic, elocutionary and musical, through various towns in Oregon and Washington.

BARBER SHOP BURGLARIZED.—Late Tuesday night Mrs. Kelly, residing on the corner of First and B streets, was roused by noise in the room on the lower floor. She dressed quickly and went down stairs into a barber shop, where the noise was heard, and found the window broken in and several razors gone. No clue to the perpetrators has as yet been found. The proprietors of the shop suspect certain parties, and have already hired a man to look into the affair.

LARCENY BY BAILEE.—Francis Clark was yesterday arraigned in the police court on a charge of larceny by bailee, to which he pleaded not guilty. The plaintiffs in the case are the Portland Paving Co., who charge Clark with selling a horse belonging to them for $40 and refusing to deliver the money to them. The horse was valued at $60. On motion of the counsel for the defendant the trial was postponed until to-day at one o'clock.

FINED FOR FIGHTING.—George Wilson was tried in the police court yesterday on a charge of assault and battery made by S. Abraham, proprietor of a second-hand store on Front street, between Oak and Pine. He entered a plea of not guilty, and after several witnesses had been called, was proven guilty and fined $10 and costs, which was paid.

RIGHT OF WAY GRANTED.—The O. R. & N. Co. was yesterday granted the right of way through Multnomah county, excluding the limits of Portland proper. It allows them to cross all wagon roads in the county, also the use of Chapman street in McMillan addition to East Portland and the right through Albina.

IMPROVEMENT OF FOURTH STREET.—So soon as the weather permits the improvement of Fourth street will be finished. It is already graded and paved to Taylor street, where work will be begun and carried to the bridge at the end of the street, which is on a line with the city limit in that direction.

MORE MONGOLIANS.—The American ship William J. Rotch, of 1720 tons burden, is now loading in Hongkong with a cargo of rice for Portland. She will also bring several hundred Chinamen for the Northern Pacific railroad and leaves port about the 1st of April.

ARRESTED.—A complaint was yesterday made in Justice Petrain's court by Charles Lawrence, charging Nancy Boggs with keeping a bawdy house. Her bonds were fixed at $50, which she furnished. She will be tried this afternoon.

SUIT BEGUN.—Messrs. Knapp, Burrell & Co. of this city yesterday filed a complaint in the county clerk's office against W. C. Weatherby. The plaintiffs claim $100 due them from Weatherby, for which they hold his note.

DEPUTY CLERK APPOINTED.—An order was yesterday made in the U. S. circuit court appointing Edward N. Deady, late from the Pen d' Oreille country, deputy clerk of the court. He will begin his duties immediately.

THE CITY COUNCIL.

A Big Grist of Business Ground Last Night

Dredging Matters—$1000 Back Pay Voted to B. F. Goodwin—W. A. Beaumont Confirmed as Policeman—Thin Sheet Iron Building—Street Work.

The city council met in regular session last evening, Mayor Thompson in the chair and every member in his seat at roll-call.

MAYOR'S MESSAGE.

Mayor Thompson submitted the following message:

MAYOR'S OFFICE,
PORTLAND, March [illegible].

To the Hon. Common Council of the City of Portland: I would urgently call your attention to the necessity of such immediate action by you to secure such legislation as is necessary to deepen the channel of the Willamette river below the city so as to render the river navigable for the deepest draught ships that visit this port at all stages of water.

I have placed in the hands of the special committee lately appointed by me all information in my possession relating to the construction of dredgers, the time necessary to construct the machinery, the cost of the same in the machine shops when made, etc.; also the cost of dredging in other places. It is folly for the city government to longer delay this work.

The work in ordinary years can commence in the Willamette September 1st, and in some seasons earlier. It will take from three to four months to construct the machinery, and at least forty days for it to reach this city after being shipped, and another thirty days to put it in working condition after its arrival.

Propositions, I understand, have been made to perform the work of deepening the river channel by contract. If this can be done under contract as cheaply as it can be done by the city government, it would perhaps be preferable, but great care should be taken in letting the work by contract, and it should only be let to responsible parties, under a heavy bond and penalty to perform the work at the time and in the manner required by the city, and no contract should be let as an experiment to test untried styles of machinery. These experiments can be done on private work.

While it is true the city government has no authority given by the city charter to spend money in the Columbia, yet the machinery to be constructed should be of such character that if needed it could be used in rougher water than is required in dredging the Willamette. Every effort has been made and is now being made in congress to secure appropriations to deepen the channels of the Willamette and Columbia rivers and the Columbia river bar. Should congress at its present session, however, fail to make such appropriations then the charter of the city should be so amended by the legislature at its next session as to allow an indebtedness sufficient to raise a sum that will enable the city to undertake the work alone. Bonds to the amount of half a million dollars, payable in ten or twenty years hence, with interest at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum can, in my opinion, be sold at par. It is useless for the city of Portland to longer delay in this matter. The work of deeping the channels of the rivers below the city must be done, and done at the expense of the taxpayers of the city, unless done by the general government.

The deepening of the channels of the rivers is of the first importance, but the deepening of the Columbia river bar must also be attended to, because if ships cannot enter the river the depth of water inside is a matter of not so much consequence.

I feel sanguine that a large appropriation for bar and river improvements will be made by congress, but we must act for ourselves if it is not done, and for this reason any machinery constructed should be so made as to be available for use in the Columbia. Now that our citizens have taken hold of the tug-boat business and will, within a few months, put tugs of sufficient power on the bar to do the work necessary to be done, and suitable for use to drag the bar and in that way deepen the channel, we should be prepared, if necessary, to pay the expenses of such dragging.

This is the most important matter with which the city has to deal. The surveys made by the U. S. engineers show that only 136,000 cubic yards of deposit has to be removed from the channels of the Columbia and Willamette rivers to make a channel 21 feet deep and 100 feet wide, from Portland to the Columbia river bar at low tide.

The capacity of a dredger, such as is now in use by the United States below the city, it is claimed by the patentees will remove from 1000 to 1600 cubic yards per day. With the present dredger used by the government, and another of equal capacity, constructed and worked by the city, the whole work could be done of deepening these river channels to the depth and width above stated, in say 70 days' steady work, and the expense of working these dredges does not exceed $100 per each day; and if working together would not exceed $70 per day for that time.

The working season in the Willamette does not usually exceed 100 days in the year, but in the Columbia work can be done from 120 to 160 days. I am assured by ship masters and pilots, who have crossed the Columbia bar for many years, that there never was a time when such effective work could be done by dragging on the bar as now. The channel is straight and the distance over the bar where the shoal water exists is short and easily worked, and no doubt is entertained by these experienced men but that the channel on the bar can be deepened by dragging to the depth of 25 to 30 feet, at low tide.

As a matter of course this would have to be continued each year, but the expense after the first year would not be great, as the cost of procuring the necessary machinery would be the most important item of expense. Respectfully submitted.

D. P. THOMPSON, Mayor.

Referred to the special committee on dredging.

PETITIONS, REMONSTRANCES, ETC.

From L. Engelke, calling attention to error in assessment; referred committee on ways and means.

From Geo. L. Story and others asking that the flagstaff on Park block be removed; referred to committee on streets.

From Portland Street Railway Co., asking permission to construct side switches; same reference.

From J. C. Carson and others asking for the improvement of J street for its entire length; same reference.

From W. W. Spaulding and others, remonstrating against improvement of G street, beyond the west line of North Nineteenth street; same reference.

From L. W. Gilliland and others, asking for the improvement of Tenth street from G to North Front; same reference.

From Jonathan Tice, stating that he had moved his effects from the public levee; ordered spread on the records.

From S. A. Walter and others, against opening of Mill street; referred to committee on streets.

From Capt. Chas. F. Powell, submitting report of dredging at Swan island bar and detailed statement of expenditures amounting to $884 76, and asking a further appropriation of $1000; referred to committee on commerce.

The committee on fire and water, to whom was referred the message of Acting Mayor Honeyman, reported that in their opinion the repairs to the building next door to the Occidental Hotel, amounted to less than 15 per cent. of the value of the building, and that the construction of the building on First street, occupied by J. Bachman & Bro., could not be legally prevented, and that their predecessors had established the precedent of permitting "sheet iron" houses in the fire limits; adopted.

Councilman Honeyman explained that the repairs to the building first referred to were $700, and its value was not $2800. Concerning the Bachman building, he said that the city attorney was ready to draw up a complaint and commence prosecution, provided the chief fire engineer would make the complaint.

Chief Engineer Hart was invited to address the council, and explained that he refrained from prosecution, because he was not so instructed by the committee on fire and water.

Councilman Kellogg, chairman of that committee, cleared his skirts by saying that the city auditor had expressed the opinion that the men putting up the building could not be successfully prosecuted, hence he (Kellogg) did not think it wise to order a complaint filed.

Auditor Durham did not make an explanation; so it is not exactly clear upon whom the blame should rest.

The committee on health and police reported back the appointment of W. A. Beaumont as a regular policeman without recommendation. Mr. Beaumont was confirmed by a vote of seven to two, Gerdes and Raleigh voting nay.

From the viewers in extension of J street from the compromise line to the western boundary of the city; referred to committee on streets.

From the city attorney expressing the opinion that the Bachman building was in direct violation of the letter and spirit of the ordinance relating to the prevention of fires.

From the same committee recommending that $1000 instead of $1200 be paid to B. F. Goodwin for services rendered the city under the Beaser administration, which had not been paid; adopted.

From the street superintendent stating that R. R. Riley, Jonathan Tice, Smith Bros. & Co., and P. G. Baker, had been notified to vacate the public levee; ordered spread on the record.

From the city surveyor in the extension of North Front street at F; referred to committee on streets.

DREDGING MATTERS.

The special committee on dredging made the following report:

Your committee, to whom was referred the matter of dredging, submit the following report: We consulted with Capt. Powell with regard to the cost of refitting the old government dredge, and through his courtesy were furnished with a statement of the machinery required and repairs necessary to be made to render the dredge serviceable, it will require the outlay of about $15,000, a sum which your committee think could be applied to much better advantage as part payment of a dredge to be owned wholly by the city.

We have made extensive enquiries into the plans adopted and machinery used by other cities situated somewhat similar to ours, and think there is but one course to pursue if we want a good channel, suitable for any vessel drawing say 23 feet, and that is, to build a powerful dredge and have the obstructions to navigation removed. We feel confident that if such a dredge is secured the bugbear of the bars on the Willamette at least will after this season be a thing of the past. Your committee would therefore recommend that they be empowered to receive proposals and contract for a dredge of approved pattern to be ready for service this fall. In regard to the many plans suggested and devices offered, such as dragging, sluicing, etc., we are firmly convinced that the most effectual and reliable way to have the work accomplished, is to take such measures as experience has taught other communities is the sure cure (have the deposits removed to dead water where they will not be liable to be carried into the river again by the current). We anticipate no difficulty in being able to secure a dredge capable of removing from five to eight hundred cubic yards of sand or silt per day, and with such a machine properly handled, Portland will be able to accommodate any vessel likely to arrive here without lightering. We would recommend a channel twenty-five deep to be the object of our labors, cost what it may. The estimate for dredge with entire outfit of machinery, chains, anchors, steam capstans, etc., including four dump scows, snag puller and men's quarters, will be $48,000.

We find from the experience of Oakland, Cal., that they have decided to own their own dredge rather than let the work by contract and the contractors to own the plant as heretofore. Respectfully submitted.

W. B. HONEYMAN,
HENRY HEWETT,
CHARLES HOLMAN.

EXPORTS OF PIANOS AND ORGANS.

The American Art Journal publishes the official statistics of exports of pianofortes and parlor organs from the United States to Europe during and for the year 1881, showing that no less than 5081 American made pianos and organs, aggregating $531,632 in value, have been exported during that one year to Europe alone.

The exports of American pianos and organs to Canada, Mexico, Central and South America, have been very large for many years, but exports to Europe of these musical instruments are of comparatively recent origin. The interesting fact is also officially shown, that of all the American pianos shipped to Europe from America in 1881, fully 70 per cent. have been exported by Messrs. Steinway & Sons of New York alone. The importation of pianos and organs from Europe to the United States has entirely ceased.

HISTORY OF WALLA WALLA.—The following we clip from the Walla Walla Statesman: Col. Gilbert has received proof sheets of the lithographs of the public buildings of this city for his work on Walla Walla county. Without any exception the proofs are the finest ever gotten up on this coast, and are a credit to Portland in general and Mr. Walling, the lithographer, in particular. We have compared them with those issued by eastern houses, especially Lippincott's of Philadelphia, and Walling's work completely discounts them; they really are beauties.

The Spring Trade being close at hand, we take this method of thanking the many ladies who favored us with their custom in the past, and will say to them and those that may favor us with their patronage in the future, that we will spare no pains nor expense to place within their reach a Dressmaking Establishment where the BEST TALENT that can be found will be combined. Our expenses are small, hence we pay highest wages to competent hands. FAIR DEALING, FAIR PRICES and ONLY ONE PRICE, which have contributed so largely in building up our business to the high standard it has now reached will be rigidly adhered to. Employing constantly from fifteen to twenty hands, a First Class Cutter and Fitter, and one experienced assistant, we can safely say that all orders entrusted to us will secure prompt and due attention.

R [illegible] Miller [illegible] nursery has sent [illegible] Josephine county [illegible] early peaches and prunes [illegible] The climate and soil of that county [illegible] adapted to that kind of fruit [illegible] planting now will soon find that they have made a good investment

Fruit growers say that prospects for a large fruit crop in [illegible] county are most promising. At this date last year many almonds and peaches were in bloom, consequently were badly damaged by frost while at present buds are only beginning to swell and bloom and will be so late that the crop will hardly be caught by frosts. A very large number of trees and vines have been set out this winter and fruit raising seems to have a new start

It is feared that a trapper named Walker living on Beaver creek just across the state line in Siskiyou county has met with some mishap or is dead. Last week one of Walker's hounds was found on Hungry creek in a starving condition and it is improbable that it would have strayed from home had its master been alive. Walker has lived alone in that locality for several years only visiting the settlements at long intervals. A party will go over from Jacksonville to investigate

R D Hume has attempted to locate a fishery at the mouth of Klamath river but failed, the commissioner of the land office refusing to permit a location on the Indian reservation. Any interference with the run of salmon at the mouth of that stream would be disastrous to the Indians on the river above and as they get no subsidies or sustenance from the government it would be pretty rough to take away their main food supply unless it were sustained or increased by hatchery

Washington Territory

The voters of the Seattle school district will decide on the 1st of April whether they will build the new schoolhouse proposed by the building committee

Plowing commenced on the Snohomish flats last week which is considered rather early in the season. It is astonishing how dry some of these tide marsh lands are

A gentleman from the Skagit country has let the contract for a boat to run on the Skagit river. She will be 78 feet long 18 feet keel, and 4 feet hold. Washington Iron works do the casting and Mr Lake builds the hull. She is to be completed by the 1st of next June

President Anderson of the Territorial university has received a letter from Mr Villard stating that he would give $1000 every six months to the support of the university for the years 1882 and 1883. This includes the $1000 already given. The regents held a meeting Saturday and it was resolved to obtain as near $2000 as possible by subscription for the purpose of repairing the university building grounds, etc. Mr Villard's gift was made upon this expectation. A A Denny started the subscription by a gift of $250, and John Leary seconded him with a $100 subscription

The logging business promises to be very brisk in Whatcom county the coming season for in addition to a dozen or more camps on the Skagit five or six will operate in the Samish and Padilla district. The timber supply on the Skagit and Samish is practically inexhaustible at least for the present generation. To be sure the very choice and most desirable tracts close to the bay and river are being rapidly taken up under the timber act but by the time the front claims are worked out a system of railroads to the interior belts will be inaugurated so that a few miles distant will not be so much objection as at present and then there is the Nooksack and the region of Lake Terrel and Birch bay yet untouched. Camps are now being established as high up the Skagit river as Minkler's sawmill some forty miles up the river, and indeed may go twice farther—clear to the Portage if necessary—for that stream is capable of floating the largest boom to the sea

FOREIGN FACTS AND GOSSIP.

Angele Sible is an orphan French girl, 20 years of age, who for some time has been a maid servant in the house of a well known lady of Paris. Fifteen years ago an elder brother left her to seek his fortune in the western world. The girl received a letter last month from Cuba saying this brother had died there, leaving her by will a fortune of 4,000 000f

M Gambetta, while on the way to the chamber a fortnight ago, had a narrow escape from injury. One of the horses took fright at some passing object while near a street corner and fell to the pavement breaking the shaft and throwing the coachman out of his box. Gambetta immediately got out of the carriage and in a neighboring cab hastened to the chamber. His coachman was seriously bruised by his fall

The one hundredth anniversary of the birth of Auber was commemorated a few weeks ago in Paris by musicians, who visited his tomb in Pere la Chaise and laid wreaths upon it and gave performances of his works at the Opera and Opera Comique. The "Muette de Portico" was given at the Opera, with a cantata, composed for the occasion, and sung between the fourth and fifth acts. For this cantata the whole personnel of the Opera, in Auber costumes, were ranged round a bust of the composer, while Mme Krauss sang the strophes composed in his honor

University professors in Melbourne have a rather startling way of deciding their disputes, and two of them have recently been punished for disorderly conduct for doing so. There was an election of president of the faculty which caused a good deal of sharp canvassing. At the voting, one of the professors, named Narson, being accused by Prof Elkington of voting unfairly retorted by calling Elkington a liar. Prof Elkington, therefore, knocked Prof Narson down, and he has since been suspended for a month from his duties and emoluments. Narson got off with a fine of £50

The late Baron Jerome David, reputed to be a grandson of the imperial painter, was already treated by King Jerome as a son and by Prince Napoleon as a brother, while Napoleon III looked upon him as a member of the imperial family and showed him many favors. Years ago he served two years in the French navy, and then transferred himself to the army, going to Algeria and the Crimea. He afterward entered the corps legislatif as an official candidate and became a vice president of that body, in which office he strenuously opposed the liberal experiments made in the last days of the empire. Of the war with Germany he was a very zealous advocate. When Ollivier resigned he became minister of public works, and upon him devolved the task of announcing the capitulation of Sedan. He became a deputy in 1876, but never took a prominent part in the debate. At the last general election he was retired from public life

Japan has a railroad in what would be called working order, perhaps, but the benefits likely to flow from it do not seem great either for the Japanese or for the cause of railways in the east. Near the end of the year 1880 a line 22 miles long was opened from Otaruni to Sapporo. It supports one train each way daily and carries an average of 200 passengers at moderate prices. Receipts accordingly are so small that the road is not likely ever to pay the expenses of running it. Nor is it managed in a way that promises to increase its popularity. Trains frequently start one, two and three hours behind time and occupy two or three hours in making the 22 miles. Rather than wait three hours for a train that may take three hours in running 22 miles, one might much better walk. Moreover, passengers are not provided with cars of comfortable construction. Some of them are of primitive design and rough in appearance

Census of the Oyster Industry.

For the first time the oyster trade has received appreciative treatment by a census bureau. The investigation of the industry was committed to Mr Ernest Ingersoll whose report has just been published, covering the history and present condition of all the oyster grounds from Canada to the gulf of Mexico besides those on the Pacific coast. In the census year of 1880 the capital invested in the oyster industry was $1 584 295. The number of bushels of oysters produced was 22 195 375. Their value to the producers was $9 034 3[illegible]1 and their value as sold was $17 438 852. The number of persons employed was 52 805 and there were used in the work 4175 vessels and 11 940 boats valued at nearly $4 250 000

The total wholesale value of the oysters annually sold in Boston is $705 000; the value of the oysters produced in Narragansett bay is $640 000; the value of those sold in New Haven harbor is $480 000; in the East river and Peconic bay $708 000; on the south shore of Long Island $400 000; in New York bay excluding New York city $1[illegible] 000; in New York city $[illegible]78 000; on the ocean shore of New Jersey, $310 000; in Delaware bay $[illegible] 000; in Philadelphia $[illegible]750 000; and in Virginia nearly $2 000 000 and about $125 000 will cover the value for the remainder of the southern coast line not including the gulf line where the value slightly exceeds $500 000

A GOOD HOUSEWIFE.

The good housewife when she is giving her house its spring renovating, should bear in mind that the dear inmates of her house are more precious than many houses and that their systems need cleansing by purifying the blood, regulating the stomach and bowels to prevent and cure the diseases arising from spring malaria and miasms and she must know that there is nothing that will do it so perfectly and surely as Hop Bitters the purest and best of medicines.—Concord N H Patriot

It is a wise precaution to provide against emergencies that are liable to arise in every family. A cold may be a dangerous thing or not, depending upon the means at hand to combat it. In sudden attacks of cold or croup, asthma etc. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral will prove the quickest and most effective cure and your best friend

DR. PAUL M. BRENAN,

ALL CHRONIC & DIFFICULT DISEASES.

DR. BRENAN WILL GUARANTEE TO CURE any form of Disease of the generative organs or private disease. He has become an expert in the treatment of disease, weakness and derangement of the reproductive organs of both male and female, including diseases caused by the

such as SPERMATORRHŒA, or SEMINAL WEAKNESS or LOSS OF PERFECT VITALITY. Nearly two thirds of all the Chronic Diseases spring, either directly or indirectly, from some derangement of the sexual system, and yet this subject is neglected by the majority of the Medical Profession.

I know that persons who are unfortunate enough to be afflicted by any form of sexual disease have a delicacy in calling upon the proper physician in time, from a sense of modesty and sometimes from ignorance and permit those diseases to exist until their constitutions become corrupted, their organizations broken down and the hope of future happiness blighted, until death becomes a welcome messenger to carry them out of their miserable existence.

Everything strictly confidential under all circumstances.

Consultation Free, and a list of printed questions sent to those living at a distance who cannot consult him personally. Enclose postage stamp for list.
